RE: Randolph, Jimmy Dean CDCR# T60254 Sacramento Superior Court 16FE002722

When the inmate pointed a silver revolver at the 18 year old clerk, and demanded that she give him the register money the inmate proved that he was violent and dangerous. That was in 2001, and other than his time in prison, the inmate has continued his dangerous criminal behavior. The inmate received 13 years in state prison for his robbery with the use of a gun in 2002. Rather than reform when he was paroled, his parole violations began. In July 2015 he violated parole and was found with methamphetamine. Then in October 2015 he was driving a vehicle with a shaved key, and when officers attempted a traffic stop the inmate accelerated and drove until he was stopped by a curb. The inmate then jumped out and ran and a foot chase began. At that time, the inmate was a parolee at large as well. The inmate was given 90 days in county jail for his parole violation and misdemeanor offense, but when he was released, rather than reform, he was convicted of the committing offense.

The inmate was arrested for making criminal threats on February 7th of 2016. The inmate attempted to get into the house of his ex-girlfriend. The girlfriend's adult sister told officers that her sister, the ex-girlfriend had not been home for two weeks because she was hiding from the inmate. The sister told officers, the inmate had strangled her sister and she no longer wanted to see him. The house contained several adults and one child and three calls to law enforcement were made that day. During the course of the day, the inmate kicked in the front door, slashed tires, tried to sell other people's property and then threatened to kill one adult in the house who was holding the door shut. The inmate claimed to officers that this was his house. Although the inmate was on parole and charged with a strike offense, he was given a Penal Code § 459 2nd, as a reasonably related offense and sentenced to low term doubled.

The inmate has a history of offending while on parole and it is mere luck that his dangerous conduct while on parole had not resulted in injury. The Sacramento District Attorney respectfully requests that early parole be denied.

Respectfully,

Lori Greene
